

the 1990s, the number of people in the UK who are employed in the public sector has increased by 1.5 million, from 2.5 million in 1980 to 4 million in 1999. The public sector has grown from 10% of the economy to 15% of the economy.

There is a growing emphasis on the need to improve the efficiency of the public sector. This has led to a number of initiatives, including the introduction of competition, the restructuring of public services, and the introduction of performance targets. The aim of these initiatives is to reduce the cost of public services and to improve the quality of the services provided. The public sector is a large and complex organisation, and it is difficult to measure its performance. However, there are a number of indicators that can be used to assess the performance of the public sector. These include the cost of public services, the quality of the services provided, and the satisfaction of the public.
